10,000 PEOPLE ATTEND MURRAY MULE DAY

Seen & Heard
Around
MURRAY

The four year old boy looking out of the second story window of Belk-Settle yesterday saying, "that's the most people I ever saw in my life."

Frank Lancaster said yesterday that he believed it was the largest crowd he had ever seen in Murray.

The day took on all the airs of a festival.

Folks riding around in convertibles, everyone talking and having a good time.

We certainly thank the people who cooperated to make Mule Day such a success.

It takes a lot of work for such an event, and the Rescue Squad did a bang-up job on their part of the festivities.

Paul Kings came in to renew his subscription, just as he has for the past nine years on fourth Monday and said he had to walk five blocks from where he parked to get to town.

Maybe if the celebration is big enough next year, we can use the entire square, instead of just two sides.

Business seemed to be good all over town. The restaurants did a whale of a business.

There were about 75 or 100 mules gathered down by the trading lot that didn't get in the show. They were work mules that are used every day on the farm.

Next year we will figure out some way for them to get in on the prizes.

The small boy on the pony captured the fancy of the crowd and received a good hand on his riding ability.

Mrs. James Lassiter recalled to mind the picture in Life magazine some time ago, showing the Galen Goughs on Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, holding their six months old baby out over the precipice at the end of a broom stick.

The little fellow had a good grip even at that age, and they apparently knew what they were doing, because he held on.

That was ten or twelve years ago and now the boy is a big husky young man built just like his father.

AT HER AGE TOO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Mar. 24 (UP)—Mrs. Charlotte Wering, 80, of nearby Worthington, suffered a fractured hip when fell off her motor scooter.

Secret Atomic Weapon Is Exploded

By ROBERT BENNYHOFF
MT. CHARLESTON, Nev. Mar. 24 (UP)—A top-secret atomic device, possibly the warhead of America's new atomic artillery shell, was exploded at 8:10 a.m. EST today as some 1,300 troops crouched in trenches only two and one-half miles from "ground zero."

The Atomic Energy Commission announced shortly after the blast that there were no casualties and that the GIs in the trenches were safe.

The results of the blast, the second nuclear "explosion" of the 1953 series, were not immediately known. The Atomic Energy Commission maintained a tight security blackout over the area of the test at Yucca Flat proving grounds.

Residents in Las Vegas said the blast, as it appeared on the horizon there, was "considerably larger" than the initial blast staged here Tuesday of last week.

Informed sources in Las Vegas said that from the position of the flash on the horizon they would guess that it was a lower detonation because it was higher in the sky than reflections from other type tests.

Sources also said the blast was barely felt in Las Vegas and reached there seven minutes and 20 seconds after the detonation.

The white flash was seen by early morning travelers along the highway between Gallup and Grants, N. M. But observers in the vicinity of Williams, Ariz., said the flash was not visible there.

It was seen only faintly, along the Colorado River between Parker Dam and Needles, Calif.

The blast was hardly felt in Las Vegas, and the sound waves resembled faint peals of thunder.

Reports from Pocatello, Idaho, said the blast was visible there.

Today's detonation was top secret and it was impossible to learn whether the extra half mile was a safety margin designed to meet with a more powerful explosion.

The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed that "anesthetized animals were placed in bunkers and test shelters near the bomb to learn what might happen to human beings exposed to atomic fury lobbed by an enemy nation."

It was not disclosed what animals were used, but the ABC has listed mice, rats, rabbits, pigs, sheep, dogs and monkeys as being available for test purposes.

THANKS

The daily Ledger and Times and the Murray Rescue Squad wish to thank everyone who made Mule Day celebration such a success yesterday.

Everyone cooperated to make the day an outstanding success.

The Mule Day could not have been put on without the complete cooperation of the merchants and other persons, who donated the prizes, and the items for the Rescue Squad Auction.

The City Council turned over two sides of the square for the day, Jackson Radio Service loaned the sound system and operated it, Paschall Truck Lines loaned a trailer, Mr. Galen Gough gave of his valuable time, the Murray Manufacturing Company and the Airlene Gas Company gave the outstanding attendance prize, a Tappan gas range, and the City Police Department kept traffic moving throughout the day.

Mule Day was the result of the effort and cooperation of many people, and with this continued cooperation, it can grow into a day recognized in the state and this entire area.

Many Entries Are Made In Horse, Mule, Dog Contests

"Most folks enjoyed the day" was the comment of many people interviewed yesterday when asked about the Mule Day program sponsored by the daily Ledger and Times and the Murray Rescue Squad.

A crowd estimated at between 10,000 and 15,000 people thronged into Murray for the day long program.

Music was furnished by Flavi Robertson and J. C. Maupin with great assistance from B. B. Dill.

The city police force did an outstanding job of keeping the record heavy traffic moving and no incidents were reported during the day.

The Rescue Squad Auction deemed a success by members of the squad. Over $500.00 was raised by the squad during the auction. Murray merchants contributed items for the auction.

The money will be used for the purchase of rescue equipment. The Rescue Squad last night expressed their, sincere thanks to the Merchants of Murray for the items, and said that the money would be of great aid in purchasing much needed equipment.

Galen Gough, former strong man and current outstanding winner, gave a short talk before the large crowd yesterday and displayed a number of his paintings. His talk and demonstration was well received by the people and he received a nice ovation. He was introduced by Shelby McCallan, state representative from Marshall county.

The Tappan Gas Range was given away at 3:30 with Arlon Tyler of Almo receiving the prize. The crowd quickly dispersed following the giving of this attendance prize by the Murray Manufacturing Company and the Airlene Gas Company.

Most Murray merchants reported brisk sales during the day.

An effort will be made next year to obtain the entire square from the city council and have some entertainment going on around the square. The council was very generous this year, a Mule Day spokesman said today by giving up two sides this year.

There were many entries in the Mule Day horse, mule and dog show yesterday on the West side of the court square.

Prize winners were: best pair of mules, Felix Dunn, Glenn Kelsa, Prince McReynolds.

Best single mule: Prince McReynolds; Glenn Kelsa, Wendall Patterson, Felix Dunn.

Best saddle horse: Hafford Robertson, Milburn Valentine, Best team horse: Hugh Foster. Best single horse: Hugh Foster.

Best foxhound male: Fred Bert, Orlen Simmons.

Best foxhound female: J. R. Hendon, J. R. Hendon.

Best beagle dog: male and female: Paul Bailey.

Best coon dog male: Bernard Starks, J. R. Miller.

Best coon dog female: Marion Crick, Marion Crick.

Best bird dog male: James Blakeley, James Blakeley.

Grand prize dog, a foxhound by Fred Bert.

Best pair of trained mules, Hatten Lovins.

Arlon Tyler Wins Tappan Gas Range

The winner of the Tappan Gas Range yesterday was Arlon Tyler of Almo. The name of Joe Pace was first drawn, but since he was not in the crowd at the time of the drawing, another name was drawn.

Mr. Tyler was very happy to get the Tappan Gas Range, since he used a coal oil stove for cooking purposes in his home.

The Tappan Gas Range was donated by the Murray Manufacturing Company and the Airlene Gas Company of Murray, in order to increase the Mule Day crowd.

The crowd here yesterday has been estimated at between 10,000 and 15,000, which is a record crowd for the city.

The new gas range is being delivered to the home of Mr. Tyler and will be installed free of charge. The beautiful range is made of gleaming white porcelain, has divided top, Vitamin Saver burners, smokeless broiler, big storage compartment, big oven, and has a lifetime guarantee on all burners and oven bottom.

"The two firms that donated the stove to the Mule Day celebration exhibited the utmost in community spirit," said John Shroat, president of the Murray Rescue Squad, co-sponsor of the event.

Extension Work Is 50 Years Old

Three Kentuckians attended the recent demonstration at the University of Kentucky, marking the 50th anniversary of farm extension work. They were T. R. Bryant, associate director of agricultural extension work at the University of Kentucky; Miss Myrtle Weidman, state leader of home demonstration work; and J. W. Whitmore, state 4-H club leader.

The celebration was held on the Walter E. Porter farm, where Dr. Solomon A. Knapp, U. S. Department of Agriculture, initiated demonstrations in better farm practices. On February 29, 1903, local business interests raised $2500 for the demonstration.

Knapp, in his tests of different seeds, fertilizers and methods of cultivation, the new practices, however, made him $700 the first year.

Kentucky's first full-time county agent was C. A. Mahan, now state agent of county agents. He went to Henderson county in 1912. He is now in charge of the state office.

institutes and agricultural tracts, which were a form of extension work. Now out counties have farm agents and most of them have home demonstration agents.

Extension work is conducted through the cooperation of groups of farmers, homemakers, clubs, 4-H clubs and other agencies. There are 1500 home demonstration clubs in Kentucky, with an enrollment of 281,000 women. Four-H clubs number 2943, and the enrollment reached 64,810 boys and girls last year.

The extension program shows farmers how to increase crop yields and have better returns from stock-raising, helps homemakers with their problems and teaches them how to raise animals, sew, can, bake and perform other tasks more efficiently.

A gauge has been developed to detect stretches of 1,000,000 to 10,000,000. The instrument is used to determine average roughness of highly machined surfaces of such parts as pistons, gear teeth, clutch bearings, crankshaft bearings and cylinder liners which will be precision fits.

Marciano Expects A Quick Decision In Coming Bout

By JACK CUDDY
HOLLAND, Mich., Mar. 24 (UPI)—Rocky Marciano said today, there are several reasons why he expects to take him out a lot quicker this time than in September.

It was a very serious champion in white, sweat shirt and brown slacks who modestly gave his reasons for believing he will knock out Jersey Joe Walcott at Chicago Stadium April 10 earlier than the fifth round of their first fight at Philadelphia.

He emphasized: "I hit Walcott only five or six solid shots during our whole fight at Philadelphia. I never realized that until I watched a couple of runs of the kinscope pictures. He was pulling away from most of my punches or just being grazed by them."

"But at the same time he was hitting me solidly in every round. I took everything he had, that night."

Chatting over his orange juice in the lodge at the Holland Furnace picnic grounds, Rocky disclosed he had been unpleasantly surprised to learn from the kinscope that he had landed "scarcely a solid left hook" until the last round.

It was his left hook that had been most devastating in his knockout of Joe Louis and Ray Louis.

"And I don't expect to be handicapped for three rounds this time by something that got into my eyes and made me blink so badly I could hardly see," he continued.

"No, we never found out what caused that eye trouble in Philadelphia. Probably it was from water being poured on my face, powder they had put on a cut on the top of my head. Maybe it seeped down into my eyes."

Why did the champ believe he could make a better target of the 36-year old Walcott this time? "I know I've increased my weight," he said.

Oliver said his school would still belong to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics of Emporia, Kan. He pointed out that the NAIA confirmed by telephone that Bevo's records are "official in every sense of the word."

Oliver, who brought Francis to Rio Grande after coaching him in high school, said he mailed a letter to Howard Hobson of Yale University, challenging the Ivy League school to play Rio Grande next basketball season.

"Now I am asking you, Mr. Hobson," the letter said, "as a professional man, to get your team against mine and let the whole world know if your motion condemning Bevo's records is true."

The NCAA has 388 full-fledged members and 18 associate members since the withdrawal of Rio Grande. An NCAA official said Rio Grande was just a part-time member, so it could get its statistics published nation-wide.

hand-speed," he said. "Boys who work with me as sparring partners before say that's my biggest improvement now — hand-speed, particularly with my right. I figure I can land this time before he rolls away or slips the punch. I mean he'll get them solid. And I'm making sure this time I'll throw plenty of left hooks."

And what did Marciano expect from Walcott next month? "He'll either come out fighting as he did before or he'll try to put-box me over the distance," Rocky concluded. "I figure he'll come out swinging because he can't take a chance on trying to box 15 rounds. I hope he does come out fighting, then, I'll hit him earlier than the 13th."

Rio Grande Gets Out Of The NCAA

RIO GRANDE, O. Mar. 24 (UPI)—Rio Grande College was out of the National Collegiate Athletic Association today of its own volition because the NCAA refused to accept the record-breaking exploits of Clarence "Bevo" Francis, the sensational scoring star who broke nearly every mark in the books.

Coch. Newt Oliver announced today that Rio Grande had severed relations with the NCAA because "there is no use letting an organization handle our statistics that make their rulings retroactive."

In New York, NCAA officials refused to comment on the withdrawal. They pointed out that Rio Grande was "never a full-fledged member of the organization, but just an associate member."

Oliver said his school would still belong to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics of Emporia, Kan. He pointed out that the NAIA confirmed by telephone that Bevo's records are "official in every sense of the word."

Oliver, who brought Francis to Rio Grande after coaching him in high school, said he mailed a letter to Howard Hobson of Yale University, challenging the Ivy League school to play Rio Grande next basketball season.

"Now I am asking you, Mr. Hobson," the letter said, "as a professional man, to get your team against mine and let the whole world know if your motion condemning Bevo's records is true."

Experts Pick Dodgers As Having Best Potential

By LEO H. PETERSEN

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—The Dodgers have the best potential of any club in the National League, if not in all baseball — so the experts are picking them to win the National League pennant again.

In 1952, they parlayed the best defense in the league, the second best pitching staff and the third best hitting into a championship. Chances are they again will have the best fielding and they might well come up with the better hitting team for they have more long ball power than any other club.

Pitching appears to be their only question mark. But it was last season at this time, too; yet, Manager Chuck Dressen came up with a staff which collectively finished second to Philadelphia in the earned run department.

Neither Dressen nor General Manager E. J. Buzze Bevas, is over pitching. They feel confident they solved that problem when they obtained Russ Meyer, a 13-game winner with the Phillies in 1952.

Dressen plans to use Meyer as one of his starting five with Carl Erskine 14-6, Billy Loes 13-8 and Freacher Roe 11-2 also assured of regular assignments.

The fifth starter may be Joe Black, relief specialist of 1952 with a 15-4 record. If Jim Hughes, who came up from Montreal late last season, can handle the bullpen chores.

Hughes looked good after the Dodgers brought him up, and he won two vital games in the pennant drive while losing only one. If he makes the grade, Black probably will be used both as a starter and in relief.

Other possibilities for starting jobs are Clem Labine, and Ralph Branca, both of whom disappointed last season and three rookies — John Podres, a left hander who has been very impressive despite his lack-luster 5-5 record with Montreal in 1952, Robert Miller, a big right hander just out of college.

Army service and Ronald Lee, a crafty southpaw, also just out of service.

Brooklyn is all set in the catching department if nothing happens to Roy Campanella. He reported 20 pounds lighter this spring than last and should improve on a .289 batting average. Back of him is Rube Walker, but he is a far cry from Campanella both in the field and at bat.

Two infield positions are set—GI Hodges at first and Pee Wee Reese at short.

Otherwise Dressen is experimenting. He wants Jackie Robinson on third and rookie Junie Gilliam on second. But there's been trouble in the attempt to displace Billy Cox at third, and the experiments all must be called failures so far.

There is a wide open battle for the left field position with Duke Snider, in center and Cafi Furillo, in right.

George Shuba, who hit .300 as a part-time player last season; Dick Williams and Don Thompson are leading candidates for the berth. Shuba appears to have recovered from his knee trouble and Williams, who hit .309 in 36 games in 1952, may share the job. Shuba going against right handed pitching and Williams against left.

The Reluctant Cinderella

by JENNIFER AMES

CHAPTER FORTY
AS DEREK drove across the bridge into West Palm Beach, then took Route one north, Don leaned forward and said in a low voice to Carol, "I thought you told me Mrs.
Felton was in Miami."
"Carol felt her face grow hot. "I thought she might be," she said.
"You didn't think anything of the sort," he said roughly. "Did she tell you not to tell me where she was?"
She shook her head. "I haven't spoken to her."
He lowered his voice and went on.
"But as knew. What sort of place is this lovers' tryst of lact?"
Derek averted round a truck,
then half-turned towards them.
"What are you two chattering about?"
"Mr. Haaslin was asking me what sort of place Driftwood Inn was," Carol said aloud.
As though glad of the excuse to talk of something impersonal, Derek launched into an enthusiastic description. The hotel consisted of four rustic dwellings built entirely out of driftwood right on the beach.
"A magazine article recently described it as a 'carnival of sea bagnards and a castle of discarded used parts,'" he said.
Laughing. "The owner, a cattle rancher named Waldo Sexton, originally built a few shacks out of driftwood as a beach house for his family. When tourists began coming asking for rooms, he added to it and the idea for an unconventional hotel was born. No one others to dress up, most of the beasts are served barbeque style out in the courtyard and guests are speeded on their way by the enthusiastic clanging of numerous sire bells."
"It sounds funny," Carol murmured, but somehow she couldn't picture Thelma Felton in that setting.
They drove through Fort Pierce, center, Derek told them, for seep-sea fishing, and soon they had turned off the main highway, were rumbling along an uneven road that went down to the shore.
Some guests must have been moving just as they turned into Driftwood, ship's bells were clanging madly, people were rushing round shouting, and it looked like a pandemonium. They didn't stop. Thelma, but Ann-Winnie, the blond young manager's sister, led them her room was on the beach facing the sea. They climbed rustic twisting stairway that looked as though it might collapse under them, knocked on a door adorned with nails and bolts, and Carol Thelma's cool voice called.
Come in."
Don opened the door; they stepped in. And there was a pause.
Carol thought afterwards it was the longest pause she had ever known. A pause while three of them looked at Thelma and she looked back at them. Her face was not so much surprised as looked, as though she couldn't believe what she saw. And Carol was again in her wide light-blue sweater as she looked at Don.
The room was dim and cool; the shadows behind Thelma's head here she stood near the door lighting her cigarette. Carol was looking at her.
